About CCA

The Colon Cancer Alliance (CCA) is the oldest, largest, and most well-known patient support group working nationally in the field of colorectal cancer. CCA was started by people who had been affected by colorectal cancer, at a time when no patient advocacy group existed and few people knew about the prevalence of this cancer or the importance of screening. Over the years, the organization has become the primary resource of information about and support around this disease.

Become a Member

As a Colon Cancer Alliance (CCA) member you will receive the latest information on the fight against colorectal cancer, hear the voice of survivors as they tell their story, and learn of opportunities through which you, too, can join the fight.
